VIRTUAL GLOBAL LEADERSHIP PRACTICES

Climate change, the bush fire emergency, the COVID-19 pandemic with its subsequent economic and social challenges, broader calls for social reform to address systemic indigenous inequality, have all made it clear that we are living and working in very turbulent times. In such times, both pain and the opportunity for transformation are present. Citizens and communities are engulfed with a sense of anxiety and stress, as well as a sense of positive potential. While society faces major inflection points, the old ways of living and working are changing and re-setting in real time.

The developing of leaders calls for fresh eyes and new methods which can help leaders develop the necessary capacity to deal with complexity and new ambitions for a sustainable planet, inclusive and fairer societies, humane, meaningful work, and respect for all peoples. Leaders are required to lead with a new maturity and a new sophistication. The increasingly complex environment demands of ourselves greater mental and emotional complexity.

The Virtual Global Leadership Practices (VGLP) Program is a virtual 6-day, 6-country leadership development experience for senior executives from the public, private and not for profit sectors.

Over 6 days, participants will interact with thinkers and fellow leaders from Australia and 6 partner countries to empower them to be transformative in their leadership work as the global and local context continually transforms.

Yellow Edge, Canberra Australia

Founded in 2002, Yellow Edge is an Australian owned company dedicated to helping individuals, teams and organisations to greater levels of performance. Our purpose is to "shape human potential" and we strive to achieve this through innovative services and trusting relationships. Yellow Edge have been delivering international executive programs, including with some of the aforementioned hosts, since 2008.

Each day, we will virtually visit and explore one country. Morning webinars will serve as 'context setting' pieces where Australian experts lead group discussions. In the afternoon, we are transported to our host destination to learn about leadership through a different lens.

Topics for exploration include:

- Leadership legacy
- Leading transformative organisations
- Leading in the context of continual pressure
- Leading for a digitally transformed government
- Transformative leadership in action
- Leading for transformative public policy
- Restorative leadership
- Leading for transformation
- Leading for sustainability

Program outcomes:

- To lead organisations in a transformational and sustainable way for the greater good.
- To be better positioned to lead in a turbulent strategic and operational environment.
- To connect with, learn from and contribute to global experiences of transformational leadership
